

NEWS IN BRIEF

- Are you a PhD student or Post-Doc interested in the Sacramento Delta? Apply now for the 2018 Delta Science Fellowship - Deadline 09/25
- Join CA Sea Grant at the San Diego Good Food Community Fair on 10/1 to learn about locally-sourced seafood.

image: Josh Asel

Highlights: Russian River Salmon & Steelhead Monitoring

California Sea Grant's Salmon and Steelhead Monitoring Program has been hard at work this past year, monitoring juvenile salmon and steelhead on dozens of creeks in the summer, documenting adult returns to the basin in the winter, and running downstream migrant smolt traps in the spring.

image: David Hubbard

Now Available: Santa Barbara Area Coastal Ecosystem Vulnerability Assessment

The Santa Barbara Area Coastal Ecosystem Vulnerability Assessment (SBA CEVA) was created to assist the Cities of Santa Barbara, Carpinteria, and Goleta and the County of Santa Barbara in planning for adaptation to climate change.

images: Jessie Altstatt (left and right) and Dan Richards (center)

Help Protect Kelp Beds and Reefs from Invasive Seaweeds

In collaboration with UC Santa Cruz's Multi-Agency Rocky Intertidal Network group, CASG Extension Specialist Carolyn Culver created MarineInvasives.org, a website that includes a reporting system and more information about invasive seaweeds.

image: Athena Maguire

Research: Good News for Abalone

Study from CA Sea Grant Extension Specialist Jennifer O'Leary finds calcifying algae may be resilient during ocean acidification.

DELTA SCIENCE FELLOWSHIP 2018

Passionate about CA water issues and Bay-Delta research?

Apply for 2018 Delta Science Fellowship - Deadline Monday, September 25, 2017

FROM OUR FELLOWS

Fellows Blog

Catch up with the State Fellows as they acquire acquire "on the job" experience in the planning, implementation and management of marine and coastal resource policies.

Eight Early-Career Scientists Awarded Delta Science Fellowships

In partnership with the Delta Stewardship Council Delta Science Program, California Sea Grant has named eight early-career scientists to the class of 2017 Delta Science Fellows.

